

Using COLOR to Set the Mood in the Landscape

LandscapingNetwork.com
By: Renee' Brown

PINK
Innocent, Soothing
Coordinating colors:

These pink cushions bring a playful, feel-good vibe under a somewhat overwhelming patio cover. The bright fabric and black furniture draw the eye into the soothing seating area.

RED
Excitement, Romantic
Coordinating colors:

The color of this wall makes a bold statement creating excitement and intrigue. At the same time, the privacy and seclusion it affords are perfect for a secluded, romantic space.

GRAY
Practical, Reliable
Coordinating colors:

The practicality of simple gray tones need not stay muted. When accented by a warm color such as the caramel walls of this house, gray offers the reliable basis for nearly any design scheme.

ORANGE
Energetic, Enthusiastic
Coordinating colors:

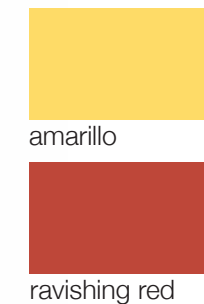

The entry way to this residence is bright and inviting. It's welcoming feel gives visitors a sudden sense of energy and excitement for what lies ahead.

BLACK
Authority, Sophisticated
Coordinating colors:

The black iron speaks volumes about what this patio is all about. It conjures up a powerful impression in a sophisticated yet fun entertaining area.

YELLOW
Happy, Optimistic
Coordinating colors:

A bright and positive entry such as this can't help but brighten your day. The long, narrow corridor to the courtyard gets visitors excited and optimistic that they won't be let down once they get to the end.

BROWN
Elegant, Stability
Coordinating colors:

The solid, earthy appeal of brown in a landscape helps bring connection to the garden. The size and warmth in the varying tones of brown, gold, and blue in this fountain add a simple elegance to the soothing sound of water.

GREEN
Refreshing, Relaxing
Coordinating colors:

Natural and rejuvenating, the color green freshens a space. It adds just the right amount of color for this relaxing, mid-century retreat.

PURPLE
Dramatic, Motivating
Coordinating colors:

The dramatic impact of an entry filled with purple salvia adds a lot of curb appeal. Contrasting with the bright green tones of the landscape, the effect is inspiring.

BLUE
Calming, Serene
Coordinating colors:

The calm, at-peace feeling of a stroll through this garden is achieved by planting design. The blue agave and grasses create a serene environment suitable for reflection and relaxation.